Letter from the President

At our September meeting the Guild membership voted in our new board. Thank you for allowing me to serve as your President for this next year -- I look forward to working with all our board members to lead our Guild forward.

October is right around the corner and on Sunday, October 1st, our outgoing and incoming board members will be meeting to make a seamless transition and begin planning the year. It is amazing how much work is done behind the scenes to ensure our Guild meetings and events run smoothly.

One area I would like to emphasize is member involvement. Being a Guild Member is so much more than just attending our monthly Guild meeting. Take advantage of all the programs provided by the Guild -- Community Service, Small Groups, Program Workshops, Day Retreats and our yearly Retreat just to name a few. The best way of getting to know your fellow members is to participate in a small group.

Please take some time and look through our website – www.qgplano.org. The website is always being updated so you can see the many things happening around our Guild. And if you need some help figuring out how you can fit in, connect with one of our board members – we are here to help!

I look forward to getting to know you all better.

Happy Quilting,

Rose Davis

Quilters Guild of Plano

Programs

submitted by Angel Hawks

I am thrilled to have the opportunity to serve the Guild in this role! A huge thank you goes out to Peggy and Dena for holding the position for the last 2 years. They did an amazing job and they continue to mentor me on my journey! I am busy booking fabulous speakers and workshops for 2019 and 2020, but I am going to need some help in all the other duties under Programs.

A big part of this job is taking care of the speakers who are visiting us this year, and I would like your help. I have a few volunteers, but I wanted to issue an open invitation to anyone who is interested in joining in. All you need to do is contact me at angel.hawks@gmail.com to join the committee. We would like to have enough volunteers to be able to rotate duties so the same people don't have to do the same job every month unless they want to. This is a great opportunity to spend quality time with our guest speakers.

We have the following needs for volunteers:

- work the workshop table during guild meetings
- assist the speaker at the guild meeting if they have a product sales table set up
- assist the speaker during workshops
- make posters for the workshops encouraging members to sign up
- occasionally provide transportation for the speaker during their visit like to/from the airport or to/from the hotel to the guild meeting or workshop location
- occasionally accompany the speaker at meals and make sure they have everything they need during their visit

If any of these sound like fun to you, please let me know. We will make sure no one gets stuck doing work all year long. The more volunteers we get, the more opportunity we will have to trade off jobs.

Thursday, October 12, Lecture – Deborah Boschert, All About Art Quilts

Deborah is a local to DFW, currently living in Lewisville. She says “My art quilts and fiber collages have been published in books and magazines and exhibited all over the world. My artwork incorporates personal symbols like houses, leaves, stones, bowls, ladders and handwriting. I believe everyone has a creative spirit and I love helping others explore that spirit.”

Her program on Art Quilts is a fun overview of art quilting including lots of pictures and examples. This is a great program for guilds who want to get a taste of the art quilting world... even if they make mostly traditional quilts. Questions like “What exactly is an art quilt? What can you look for in the art quilt category at a quilt show? What can you talk about when someone says they are an art quilter?” will be highlights of the program. This program will be featured at the Houston International Quilt Festival this year.

Friday, October 13 - Workshop – Captivating Compositions for Art Quilts

Students will create a “sketch” for each of the design guides using fused fabrics. Learn to edit, audition and improvise using a super helpful design checklist. Explore adding details with machine and hand stitching.

Your completed set of fabric sketches can be used as instruction and inspiration for future art quilts. Watch this YouTube video she created describing this fabulous workshop, <https://youtu.be/zw146GFKVWw>. You can now sign up for workshops online. Sign up for this workshop today, <http://www.signupgenius.com/go/10c0c4ca4a92ea5fb6-deborah>.

Saturday, October 14 - Workshop – Techniques in Paint and Ink

Simple techniques and supplies, stupendous results! Cut freezer paper stencils, create foam stamps, print with found objects and make marks with pen and ink! We'll talk about shapes, pattern, repetition, and color.

Students will leave with a beautiful stash of original fabrics ready to be used in art quilts, collage or mixed media. You can sign up for this workshop today, <http://www.signupgenius.com/go/10c0c4ca4a92ea5fb6-deborah1>. This workshop will also be offered at the Houston International Quilt Festival this year.

November will bring us Allison Bayer for our guild meeting speaker and workshop instructor. She will be teaching Scrap User's System. Sign up for this workshop at the October Guild Meeting! See you all there!

Community Service

submitted by Kaye Dunn and Linda Neal

Linda and I want to say how much we appreciate your faith in us by electing us to the position of VP of Community Service. It is part of our mission as a guild to “use our skills for the benefit of and to provide comfort for others in the community”. This is an awesome responsibility and one of which LaDawn has done a marvelous job for the past several years. We will strive to achieve the high standard she has set before us. This service is not one that can be accomplished by a few. It relies on all of you whether you piece a kit, quilt, bind, crochet or knit. In the words of Clark Griswold from Christmas Vacation “We’re all in this together”. I have one final request; record your hours. They help us maintain our 501c3 status.

Quilt Plano

Quilt Plano 2017 is now in the books! We have closed it out and gotten the final numbers. Rose has done an amazing job! Now is the time to begin preparing for 2018. There are still jobs open for those of you that would like to do something to participate in this awesome endeavor.

Please feel free to let me or someone else on the board know if you have any suggestions on how to improve the show or what you might want to do to participate in the next show. There are jobs, large and small, for whatever you have availability, ability and the desire for.

As we begin reorganizing job titles and positions, we need all of you to be ready to help us achieve this goal. Take time to talk with someone you saw at the show in August and ask them what you could do to help make this happen again next year. It may be just what that person needs to remind them that you are there. This show is an experience that everyone can be a part of.

I am looking forward to working with all of you. Let's get this show started!

Falling for fall and getting things done -

submitted by Janet Plotkin

Does it happen to you every year? The bounty of summer is winding down, there is a tiny hint of coolness on the air, the leaves start to turn, and I get to see sunrise almost every morning. I love to stroll the aisle of school supplies, and sniff a fresh box of crayons. It makes me want to sign up for a class, or try a new technique. People refer to Spring as the time for renewal, but for me it is the fall.

This year I am trying another new method of getting things done. I am using my phone timer to remind me to exercise, to get off the computer, to prep for making dinner, and to make time for sewing. One of my quilting inspirations is Victoria Findlay Wolfe, and her book 15 Minutes of Play. In it she emphasizes the importance of improvisational play in our quilting. Getting away from a structured pattern and allowing your inner child to just embrace the fabric and the stitching is nourishing for your creative spirit. We are coming into the season of deadlines, I hope you too will set a timer and allow yourselves to just be, or play, or reflect, and refresh what is divine within you.

Upcoming Guild Activities:

October 13, 14, and 15 is the last 2017 Day Retreat at the Dallas Games Marathon. The cost for all three days is $40. The Day Retreat will run from 9am on Friday until 4pm on Sunday. You can come early and stay late and leave your stuff. If you have not participated in a Day Retreat please consider treating yourself. This is a great time to get a jump start on some of those holiday gift deadlines. On Sunday morning I will demo a small fabric basket that makes a great hostess, colleague, or secret sister gift. Please check the DALLAS QUILTERS MARATHON Facebook page for more information.

November 9 – We will play a fast and fun game of chance. Please bring one, two, or three fat quarters with the Quilt Shop band still on. I saw this game played at a recent high-dollar fund-raising event and it was a hoot!

December 12 – Pin Cushion exchange: Please play along by making a fun or fabulous pin cushion that you would be delighted to receive, package it as a gift, and we will exchange them at the Guild meeting.

January 11 – Ugly Fabric Challenge Swap: In January we will exchange Ugly fabric, and ala Becky Goldsmith, we will turn those less desirable pieces into color magic. We will have the big reveal in July, when each person will get an opportunity to show off their project and explain their process. Please remember to take pictures as you go so we can do a slide show with your progress pics. And, if space allows, we may be able to hang them in the show as a special exhibit.

February 22-25: RETREAT – Can you believe it is just over 4 months away. Are you getting excited thinking about it. I need to make some plans for what I want to put in the show in 2018, so I can make progress at retreat. Look for all the details in this newsletter or on the Guild website.

Thank you for electing me to serve a second term as your VP of Guild Activities, and may the sweater season be upon us soon.

Spray Basting

submitted by Monica Hendewerk

I spray baste ALL of my quilts – no matter how big they are. I have found that not all basting spray is alike. I've tried 3 types. There are many out there. My absolute favorite is the Tailor Spray shown below, which I bought at Joann's. It has very, very little odor, and the right amount of tackiness. A group of us basted around 50 quilts in an afternoon, twice, inside my house. No one had a headache or complained of the smell.

If you look at the ingredients they are very different than the bottle on the right, which I used once and found it to be a disaster. It contains acetone, which is highly volatile and has a terrible smell. And it sticks so strongly that if you want to move the top or back immediately after spraying, you can't. It's like super glue. Got all over our hands and make them black. Couldn't wash it off, even with soap.

I tried making my own (5 different methods – I REALLY tried!) and found that I couldn't make a usable product and even if I could, it wasn't worth the cost or the mess. I'd be happy to hear if you go down this path and find something that works!

Spray basting method

There are LOTS of YouTube videos, etc.

Laying out the quilt sandwich

1. Tape the backing to a flat surface, face down. Carpet, white fold-up tables, wood floor.
2. Make sure the back is taut (not stretched, but tight)
3. Lay the batting and the top on the backing.
A few good tips:
 - Backing should be tight, batting and top should LAY on the backing. Use your hands and push the batting and quilt top down.
 - Don't put your hand in the middle, press hard, and stretch the top out to the edges
 - It should be called Spritz Basting, not Spray Basting. Spritz small periodic spots, not spray painting the entire surface
4. Fold top and batting over onto itself (I generally take the ends and fold to the halfway mark)
5. Lift the batting and top slightly, and spritz the middle 1/4 of the quilt sandwich - keep the nozzle of the bottle underneath the batting and top and "spritz" a spot of basting spray about as frequently as you would place pins if you were pin basting – about a hands width apart. No need to "SPRAY" – that's overkill – wastes money and might gum up needle (not necessarily with the good stuff, just a waste of spray)

6. Fold the batting and top back down. Lift the batting and top and spritz the front 1/4 section.
7. Go to the other side and repeat. Fold back the edge of the batting and top to the halfway mark. Hold the folded part up slightly and spritz that 1/4 of the quilt.
8. Fold the batting and top back down. Lift the batting and top and spritz the front 1/4 section.

Baste the quilt top to the backing

9. Repeat steps 4 through 8 lifting only the top of the quilt, i.e. basting the top to the batting.

Heat set

Why heat set? My biases – it's a final quality check to make sure the backing has no wrinkles, and I'm convinced that the basting might be more robust (who knows – never tried no heat setting). My experiences: quilted a very large quilt over 3 months, man-handled it like crazy while quilting it on a home machine, had no loss of basting integrity, not a single wrinkle on the backing or top. Won a second place ribbon on that quilt! Basted 50 quilts with friends for Community Service, stuck them in my attic for 3 months in the summer heat and didn't have a single one that didn't hold.

10. PRESS the quilt, don't "iron" it. The top shouldn't be "tight" – machine quilting needs some slack. If the top is too tight, the back will pucker or have folds. So just PRESS the iron down on the quilt top to make sure there aren't any wrinkles
11. Better not to "iron", i.e. don't "push" the iron from the middle to the edges – it will stretch the top, undo the basting, and make wrinkles in the backing when you quilt. But, I've seen it done both ways, so iron if you can't help yourself.
